This event offers a unique opportunity for talented scientists, engineers, and innovators to learn as well as contribute to Business-to-Business industrial challenges. The hackathon will feature keynote speakers from leading institutions, including the European Commission, industry, research institutes, and academia. Participants can expect to delve into problem hacks across various sectors, initially focusing on materials and manufacturing, with opportunities expanding to health, retail, and climate change.

Calling all innovators! DOME 4.0 seeks passionate individuals from these sectors to join the hackathon. Throughout the event, participants will receive support and training directly from project experts.
